Kenn LeGault Joins Bose Professional as Vice President of Engineering

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. – Oct. 10, 2023 – Bose Professional announced Kenn LeGault as their newly-appointed vice president of engineering. LeGault brings more than three decades of engineering and leadership experience across significant global brands including Avid Technology, DreamWorks Animation, Dolby Laboratories and Amazon.

LeGault’s experience includes leadership roles at Avid where he worked on audio recording and editing products such as Pro Tools; at Amazon where he led the team responsible for Alexa Hybrid Engine (cloud/edge processing) for speech recognition; and at Dolby, contributing to Dolby Atmos and Dolby Vision products across Cinema, Broadcast and Mobile business segments.

“The majority of my career has been focused on professional and prosumer audio,” shared Kenn LeGault. “I am very passionate about media technology and applications for entertainment and communication. I have been fortunate to be a part of several industry-changing initiatives, and I am excited to help Bose Professional advance their technology and products to the next level.”

John Maier, CEO of Bose Professional added, “Kenn’s deep understanding of the relationship between technology and system design and performance provides valuable insight on how customers interact with products, what installers and system designers need, and how to best integrate these into solutions that help our end customers achieve their goals.”
